

FALLING AWAY

If I believe in Jesus, If I believe in Hell
If I have read the Bible, and know it very well
If I have been educated, a son of a preacher man
If I have read the scriptures, to help me understand

If I could pierce the darkness with light that shines from grace
If I can know a savior who suffered in my place
If I can see the visions and I can dream the dreams
If I can know the right words, why does it always seem

I'm falling away again
I'm taking it on the chin
I don't remember where I'm going or where I've been
I spread myself too thin
I sought the honor of earthly men
Now I'm falling, I'm falling away again

If I can speak like angels, and I can feel his touch
Why do I see the dying and never care too much
If I can move all mountains, and I can prophecy
I'll see the brokenhearted and not stop to ask them why

How can I know the glory, this truth that I've been taught
It's Always the same old story, I'll do what I would not
Oh, how can I judge you, you're like me
I see it written on my face
The only thing that makes us free
Is that we finish the race

I'm falling away again
I'm taking it on the chin
I don't remember where I'm going or where I've been
I spread myself too thin
I sought the honor of earthly men
Now I'm falling, I'm falling away again
